Romans 10:14-15

In the Beginning...

Sitting down to compose this letter for you we often wonder, "What is there to say?" As thoughts are jotted down and occasions remembered we change our thinking to, "Keep it to one page!" Thankfully there is no need to go back too far to fill this page, only to where our last newsletter left off.

All in the Family

The best news is the blessing of our second child, a girl, expected October 7th. Mom and baby are growing and healthy according to the doctor and the ultrasound showed nothing unexpected. The plan is to have the baby in Fairbanks and from what the other Nenana moms say that hour-long drive can go by quick! Sabrina is too young to understand exactly what is happening but when asked if she is going to be a big sister she gives a resounding, "NO!" She is enjoying the summer weather with trips to the playground and just generally being outside, and after watching us swat at mosquitoes she is getting to be an expert as well. Adam continues to produce the Bluegrass Hour Saturday evenings and has enjoyed the listener mail. With summer came a severe drop in Adam's

Sunday school class, zero! Families are working out of town or vacationing and he has moved over to teaching the adult class. During July he is flying VFCM's airplane for them to various villages for some women and children outreach events. Doing this flying is helping him to stay "current" with his flying skills as well as keeping "current" with friends in the bush. He also had opportunity to log a few hours in a Maule based in Fairbanks this June accomplishing two goals at once: building time in Maule aircraft will save money on insurance premiums and completing his biannual flight review. Summer has also brought opportunities to volunteer for projects around town from Vacation Bible School at church to assisting the Chamber of Commerce with their 4th of July BBQ.

Expanding Horizons

As the family grows we are taking a close look at where to put this newest addition. With the Lord's grace we are expecting to move the cabin to our own city lot where there is water and sewer available before winter. Our plans inside the cabin include extending the loft to a full floor for more bed space as well as adding a bathtub and toilet up there. Our car has been fine for the three of us but there isn't enough room for two car seats in the back and two people up front and a months worth of groceries. In an amazing way God has taken care of that need, waiting for us in North Carolina is an '89 Suburban! We are working on details to get Adam down there so he can drive the nine days back to Alaska before the end of summer and arrival of the baby. Thankfully the cost of the trip will be less than buying something comparable up here.

These Boots Were Made for Walking...

Thankfully we have more than just our boots to get us around, especially when that includes a friend who let us hop a ride in his two-seater Citabria airplane for a weeks visit. It took two round trips to shuttle our supplies and us but it was worth it. The Turner's trap for fur in the winter and invited us out for a stay in March and though the outhouse was cold we didn't let it stop us from having a good time. Adam learned on the fly how to "drive" a team of dogs and Sabrina and Lyndy watched the scenery fly by from the basket of the dogsled. At one point the dogs were pointing backwards, more interested in checking out Sabrina than the trail! We enjoyed eating various types of meat and stayed up late every night, Bush hospitality at it's finest, thanks Turner's! Closer to home: this spring we drove out to the semi-remote cabin of a couple that listen to the Bluegrass Hour. They are both pilots as well which means there is always something to talk about. With summer in full swing we'd love to be out on the river too, oh for an airplane!

Speaking of ...

You knew all along there would be an update on the airplane, right? The news remains the same; delays have again pushed back the process with the certification expected to be complete by Thanksgiving. Please continue to pray for this whole development, we are anxious of course to take delivery but are aware that God's timing in this case is not our own.

(We see evidence of that as well in the slow progress toward a hangar.) The following is an excerpt of e-mail from Maule. "The engineer we are working with in Albany, GA is formulating a drop test program, and that we will be doing soon. Then we have to do a flutter test, and then we must formulate a flight test and do the flight program. We still have a little ways to go, but I will keep you informed as we progress. Please pray for favorable test results, favor with the FAA, and favor with the engineer." Pray for our patience as well during the time of waiting. We know we are not the only ones wanting this modification and orders have slacked off as people step out of line, as we have, to wait for this newer model. That is an encouraging piece of news because we know it continues to motivate Maule to success.

The Final Frontier!

With the latest increase in postage (37¢ a piece adds up quick) we have decided to take the last step into the cyber frontier and begin offering our letter via email in addition to "snail mail". Would you prefer to see this page on your "big screen?" anlwhite@thewhitepagesonline.com is our address, zip us an email and we'll do the rest. As always you'll find more pictures and details of all these adventures on our web page, make sure and check it out, www.TheWhitePagesOnline.com
