Romans 10:14-15

Wow!

Have you ever been able to squeeze all your clothes into the suitcase and shut the lid just in time? Sometimes we wonder if we're the suitcase or the latches! As full and busy as our lives are, we are thankful it is not our strength but God's planning and love molding our days. Thanks for all the Christmas cards letters and pictures; there sure are some good-looking people on our fridge! Here are some highlights from our year...

December 2000 through March

Hello Sabrina! Born on December 7th she has rocked our world. It seems that people have advice to spare when you're pregnant but until that bundle is in your arms you just don't understand! She has kept us busy and been joyful and a wonder every day. Once she arrived the time crunch of preparing to move to Alaska also arrived. Departing March 16th with a gooseneck trailer and leading a caravan of his dad driving our car and friends towing the 5th wheel camper, Adam and the Big Red Truck lead the way. April 9th they pulled into Nenana, tired, slightly crumpled but relieved and rejoicing to be here. The next day Sabrina and Lyndy, with Adam's mom, flew into Fairbanks rejoicing to have made it without incident with their 4-month-old co-passenger. Remember grumbling when those parents with infants board before you on the plane? Be careful, you might be grumbling at us!

April through June

Thanks to some great friends we were able to park our camper (home) and get settled quickly. April and May aren't a blur but smudges in our memory! Spring came, the ice melted, our airport property was cleared and a driveway with 40' container placed. Adam was able to offer his help at the radio station with the needed flying and also began working Saturday afternoons 3-12am. A new Sunday school class of 1st -6th graders began at church with us teaching and the first work group arrived to help us out. Looking back like this makes me dizzy!

July through September

Our original plans for building a hangar this summer were changed and a 12x16 log cabin was begun in July when a workgroup from North Georgia arrived ready to work! They built from the skids up in one week, a summer's worth of work for one man. Thanks for the help from so many of you. Adam finished out the last things in October with help from friends around town and we are easily staying warm through the -45 weather of our winter.

August was when the Bluegrass Hour began again with the first show on the 25th. Listener mail has been great and Adam is getting his needed dose of bluegrass music every week. During September we took Sabrina to Fairbanks twice a week for swim lessons. She was only nine months old but enjoyed the water. September 11 affected many things up here as hundreds were stranded during hunting season without radio coverage and unaware their airplane ride was days away. Towns were without food staples and mail but the thing unchanged in this world is our trust in Christ's salvation.

October through December

Our "determination dust" arrived Oct. 10th when the first snow came to stay. We decided to call it that because it quickly makes you determined to finish all your projects! An AWANA club began here for kindergarten through second grade sponsored by the church we attend, Nenana Community. We are leaders and listen to the kids recite their memorized texts every Tuesday afternoon. Their minds are amazing at absorbing and holding scripture as they work through their handbooks. Lyndy is now helping at the radio station, editing a recorded Native Alaskan church service for airing every week. It's a time of testimony and singing with room squeezed in for the featured speaker, all an encouragement to believers in villages throughout the state. The highly anticipated first birthday came Dec. 7th and Sabrina was confused by the attention but loves her toys! We had the best gift of all this Christmas: family visiting, Adam's parents and sister came for two weeks.

Come Out, Come Out Wherever You Are!

You are surely wondering, where did the airplane go? Throughout the year our plans continued to change as the expected modifications for the Maule plane were held up by FAA testing and certification. Things are continuing to proceed but the government's wheels sometimes turn slowly. Please continue to pray that things will progress and our patience will endure. Delivery is expected to be late this year and our plans to visit with you as we travel still stand.

Last Things

Is there anything left to say? Yes! Our love and prayers are with you and thank you for the love you show to us year round. It is encouraging to know you are praying for us and it can be seen in our lives.
